Original Poetry.

For the Republican.

WHEN THE HOURS OF LIFE ARE SADDEST.

BY J. G. LONDEN.

There are hours when life seems dreary,
'Mid the tumult and the care;
And the heart grows sad and weary
"Building castles in the air."

When the sunshine seems the faintest,
As it falls upon our way;
And hopes so fond and cherished
Like baubles float away.

When the sweetest flowers are fading,
'Mid the autumn's chilly blast,
They robe the heart in memories—
Sweet memories of the past.

Select Miscellany.

In The Wrong House.

I was born in Dudleyville, where also my father and my father's father were born before me. The first son of our family, for many generations, had been christened Nicholas, and I was honored with the same uphonious cognoman. On the male side, my father and I were the only ones left to represent the ancient race. We were both as well known in Dudleyville as the spire of the village church—and, from being so well known, were hailed, the whole country round, by the familiar epithet of "Nick Dudley," and to save confounding the two, my father was frequently called "Old Nick."

I believe in my soul this was the cause of his sending me so early abroad. Be that as it may, I was equipped, and regularly installed, when I was scarce sixteen, into Uncle Sam's service, where, young as I was, I contrived to distinguish myself for my military daring and courage, which, I am now convinced, was nothing but youthful foolishness.

It was during the Texan war I served, and at the age of twenty-one, I returned once more to the paternal roof with the title of Major prefixed to my name.

It was with no ordinary degree of self-satisfaction that, with my showy regimentals, with my face browned by a tropical sun, a fierce military moustache, and my tall proportions, I paced the deck of the steamer which was soon to land me within a short stage ride of my native town.

My sister Kate, whom I longed to see, had, I fancied, grown a tall and beautiful girl, and as she had thrown out some vague hints in her letter to me, concerning some important changes in her life, which only awaited my presence to accomplish, I racked my brain to imagine the sort of a chap the intended husband might be.

My return I had carefully planned in such a way as to surprise the old gentleman and Kate. By no possibility were they expecting me for a full week. I had learned from Kate that the old homestead was undergoing repairs, and that meanwhile the old gentleman had rented a house in the heart of the flourishing town.

I knew the old place, and all its surroundings so well, however, in spite of alterations, that I could not be at fault.

I was in the very street at last, and in front of the house which held my good father and sister.

As I was about to ascend the steps, and enter the house legitimately by the front door, I saw that the dining-room windows, which opened on the green before the house, were wide open, and the bright lights within the room shone on the out-spread table just as the family had left it after the evening meal.

They must have had company, thought I, for the table had, evidently, been laid for a number of persons, and the massive spoons and shining silver tea-service lay temptingly open to the hands of any passing thief.

A brilliant thought flashed on my mind. A double surprise, thought I, and no sooner than acted.

Springing, at one bound, through one of the open windows, I gathered, as hastily as possible, spoons, and whatever of the massive plate I could, determining to make my way up stairs, and into the drawing-room, before any of my family saw me, and present my sister with my own presence, and her silver, at the same time.

Just as I was about to open the door of the dining-room, my eye glanced upon the name engraved upon the silver—"Livermore."

I started like a criminal. While it flashed through me like a shock of lightning, that my father, though a man of means, had never manifested any great love of silver, and had never owned any plate except the old-fashioned spoons and tea-service which had been handed down from generation to generation, it also occurred to me, for a dead certainty, that I had waked up the wrong passenger; in short, that I was in a fix, and decidedly in the wrong house.

As the truth glanced rapidly through my mind, I was engaged in replacing the silver previous to making my exit in the same way I had entered.

But, alas for human calculation! before I had divested my pockets of half their contents, the door opened and shut with a bang, giving me a glimpse of a servant maid, half terrified out of her wits.

Scream followed scream, then a clatter like a tramp of horses. I made for the window, but one of the shutters had already been closed with a bang, and in the same way the rest were closed as if by magic.

A friendly side-door stood invitingly open. I made my way through it, and up a private staircase. The next moment I found myself in a snug library, adjoining the brilliantly lighted room.

I heard steps approaching, and, darting behind the shelter of the ample drapery which curtained the window, I had only time to conceal myself, when voices in the apartment made me aware that I had been none too quick in my operations.

After a little I was left alone, and now I had time and food for reflection. Suppose I were caught—the silver actually in my possession; the proof was convincing—damning; even my father's name, well and favorably known, could not shield me. I was well known, too, as a wild, reckless blade, and to many, the probability that I had added housebreaking to my other lawless accomplishments, might be easily supposable.

Determined to put the best possible face on the matter, in case I was caught, I remained almost breathless in my hiding place.

Presently, by the hum of voices, I could hear that the drawing-room began to fill. I grew nervous—restless. I longed to rush out in the midst of all, and acknowledge who I was, and the reason of my being there under suspicious circumstances. But the reasons were so ridiculous that, in spite of all my more manly feelings, I was constrained to remain like a guilty wretch in my hiding place.

At intervals, groups of visitors entered the library, and then withdrew. At each intrusion, I felt that my hour had come, But somehow my good genius proved to be in the ascent. No one came to the window.

The rooms began to thin. I could plainly distinguish that fact with some degree of hope in my breast. Again I heard voices and steps enter the library. "Before I go, dear Edith," said a musical voice, which I recognized, with a thrill of joy and pain, as my sister's, "let me tell you that, in a week, I expect my dear brother. I shall then have the pleasure of introducing you"—

"Ah! that long-talked-of brother; Kate, I am half in love with him already from your glowing description."

"You will be entirely in love with him when you see and know him. See, here is his last letter; shall I read it?"

Edith, the little witch, consented, and then I had the pleasure of hearing the last scrawl read by my partial sister.—Oh, how mawkish it sounded to me; how pointless the wit; how silly the attempt at poetry.

But Edith praised it when Kate had ended, and this in a moment reconciled me to the boyish attempt.

At last the rooms were still, the lights extinguished, and darkness prevailed.

I was preparing to emerge from my hiding place, when the opening of a door arrested me. Light steps approached, the curtain was drawn, and the moonlight revealed the form of a beautiful girl, and at the same time I was revealed to her astonished view. With admirable presence of mind she suppressed a scream.

"Who are you—what are you doing here?" she asked hurriedly.

"Are you the person who—are you a robber? Did you break into—"

"Did I break into your house, you would ask. Yes, but do not start. I am no robber, I assure you. Alas! I need your assistance."

I saw that my manner assured her, and I went on.

"I am the only brother of your friend Kate Dudley, and as such, ask your compassion, for I must be right in supposing you are Miss. Edith Livermore, with whom Kate has repeatedly made me acquainted in her letters."

"I am, indeed, Edith Livermore," she replied, with unfeigned astonishment; "and I—"

"You would hear how I got here with these in my pocket," and I pulled out spoon after spoon, and laid them before her.

Edith looked more and more perplexed, and considerably terrified. But I soon re assured her by relating the whole of my adventure.

She blushed a little when I related the conversation between her and my sister, but somehow we talked and talked there alone until the gray dawn reminded us that I must go.

Edith, herself, let me out of the door, but not till I felt somewhat assured that what she said to my sister had literally come true—that she was really more than half in love with me.

It has been several years since then, but not long enough to make either myself, or my little wife, Edith, regret my adventure in the wrong house.

Occasionally, when the train arrives at a certain station on the Erie Railway, a nice young man jumps off and kisses the best looking girl at the depot, supposing it to be his sister. He apologizes so nice that the girls are getting so they look for him regularly. Some big brother will jam his nose yet.

"Oh where do you get the red for your cheeks?" said a pale wan young lady to a bright laughing minx.

"Where the roses get their's—in the air and sunlight," was the reply.

"John," said a pious uncle to his nephew, who was paying his first visit to the city, "John, we're in the habit of saying something before we eat." "All right," said John. "Go ahead! You can't turn my stomach!"

TAKE THE PAPERS

BY R. P. WILLIS.

Why don't you take the papers?
They're the life of our delight,
Except about election time,
And then we read for spite.

Subscribe! you cannot lose a cent,
Why should you be afraid?
For cash thus paid is money lent
At interest four-fold paid.

Go, then, and take the papers,
And pay to-day, nor pay delay,
And my word for it is inferred,
You'll live until you're gray.

An old neighbor of mine,
While dying with a cough,
Desired to hear the latest news
While he was going off.

I took the paper and I read
Of some new pills in force;
He bought a box—and is he dead?
No—hearty as a horse.

I knew two men, as much alike
As e'er you saw two stumps,
And no phrenologist could find
A difference in their bumps.

One takes the paper, and his life
Is happier than a kings,
His children all can read and write,
And talk of men and things.

The other took no paper, and
While strolling through the wood
A tree fell down and broke his crown,
And killed him—"very good."

Had he been reading for the news,
At home, like neighbor Jim,
I'll bet a cent that accident
Would not have happened him.

Why don't you take the papers?
Nor from the printer sneak,
Because you borrow from his boy,
A paper every week.

For he who takes the papers,
And pays his bills when due,
Can live in peace with God and man,
And with the printer, too.

How To Break Down a Church.

To do this effectually, you must,

I. Discourage the pastor.

II. Discourage your fellow members.

III. Destroy the confidence of the community.

I. To discourage the pastor.

1. Absent yourself from one service every Sabbath, or miss at least one in three; if he is not very strong, one in 4 times may answer.

2. Neglect prayer and class meetings.

3. Criticise your minister freely—praise him sparingly—find fault plentifully—pray for him little or none.

4. If he proposes to hold extra meetings, withhold your co-operation.

5. Give yourself no concern whether his salary is paid or not.

6. Never call on him socially, or allow him to think that his comfort or that of his family is a matter of any importance in your eyes.

III. To discourage your fellow members:

1. Observe the directions given above.

2. Complain about everything they do and don't do.

3. Contrive to make yourself the head of a clique, and by their assistance and your industry to keep the church in hot water generally.

4. While doing this, lose no opportunity to complain of the bad treatment you are receiving:

5. Be as much like Diotrephes and as little like Paul as you can.

6. Discard charity and candor, take distrust to your bosom, and make scheming your speciality.

III. To destroy the confidence of the community:

1. Observe the foregoing directions:

2. Tell the people that you are in the Church by force of circumstances, but have no respect for the way in which business is conducted.

3. Publish the faults of your brethren, taking care to magnify them.

4. Make no effort to induce the people to attend the church.

5. Take no part in the labors of the Sunday-school.

6. Publish on all occasions that you have no confidence in the concern—predict that it must fall—go down—blow up, and never succeed.

By observing these directions faithfully, you may have the satisfaction, if the church is not unusually vigorous, of witnessing the fulfillment of your predictions.—Southern Ex.

AN ANECDOTE OF POPE.—One day as Pope was engaged in translating the Iliad, he came to a passage which neither he nor his assistant could interpret. A stranger who stood by, in his humble garb, very modestly suggested that, as he had some little acquaintance with Greek, perhaps he could assist them.—"Try it, try!" said Pope, with the air of a boy who is encouraging a monkey to eat red pepper, "There is an error in the print," said the stranger, looking at the text. "Read as if there was no interrogation at the end of the line, and you have the meaning at once." Pope's assistant improved upon this hint, and rendered the passage without difficulty.—Pope was chagrined: he could never endure to be surpassed in anything. Turning to the stranger he said in a sarcastic tone, "Will you please tell me what an interrogation is?" "Why sir," said the stranger scanning the ill-shaped poet, "it is a little crooked, contemptible thing that asks questions!"

It is better to *Re*late than never.

NEVER RAISE A CHILD BY THE HAND OR WRIST.—It is a common practice of nurses and parents to grasp children by a single hand or wrist, and lift them bodily, as in stepping over gutters, streams, &c. Occasionally a child is seized by the hands and swung around with great force, the body being held at nearly right angles. This feat is not always followed by ill effects, but it is liable to result in most serious injury.—At this period of life, the ends of the long bones are united to the shafts by cartilage, which renders them weak and liable to be distorted by force. There are three of these bones in the arm; one between the shoulder and the elbow, and two between the elbow and wrist. The arm of the child, is, therefore, very weak. When extension is made at the hand, the force is not expended upon long, firm bones, but rather upon bones broken at several points, and very loosely united. A small force, far less than is required to fracture a full-formed bone, will separate the cartilagious portions, or permanently bend them. There is also another form of injury which may occur at the instant. Of this I have seen several examples. It consists in a slight displacement of the cartilage in one of the joints, either the wrist, or the elbow, attended by pain, swelling and tenderness. The joint is fixed in a semi-flexed position, and the little sufferer will not allow it to be moved, or even handled. It can be easily rectified by a surgeon, by forcible flexion and extension. Finally, by lifting a child in this manner, the ligaments about the joints may be extended, and this will weaken the joints, and his weakness may remain as a permanent disability.—From the Notebook of an eminent Physician, in Hearth and Home.

THE LOST FOUND.—In a town not a thousand miles from the White Mountains lives an old farmer by the name of Tom P., who is famous for nothing except the quantity of dirt that is always seen upon his person. The following story is told at his expense, which may be true, for ought I know to the contrary. One time he was taken sick, and the doctor was called in, who prescribed, among other things, that he should have a warm bath. Tom rebelled at this; but upon being told that his life depended upon it, he consented, and a tub of water was at once prepared by his better-half, into which was thrown a liberal quantity of soap. A rough towel was then procured, and the old lady commenced the task of cleaning, for once, at least, her lord and master. After working away for several minutes, her eyes were attracted by something bright that shone through the dirt, and she worked with redoubled energy. Another bright spot was soon visible a little way from the other; and, with a light in her eye that told of her joy at the discovery, she exclaimed:

"Daddy! daddy! I'm glad the doctor told me to wash you; for, as I live, here are them trowsers that you lost two years ago. I can tell them by the buttons."

THE IMMUNITIES OF THE POOR.—Poor people never live in brown-stone fronts, or elegant villa residences, with all the modern improvements. Consequently, in the dead of winter their furnace-grates never break down, their flat roofs never leak, their water-pipes never burst, their plate-glass windows are never broken, their dumb-waiters never give out, their patent burglar-alarms never go off at the wrong time. Their coachmen never get drunk, careless servants never crack their Sevres China. In fact, one of the chief happinesses of poverty is, exemption from the affliction of servants. No Irish page around the humble dwellings of the poor. When the daughters of poverty exchange calls, their conversation may dwell on pleasanter themes than the trials they have undergone with the cook, the minutiæ of the chambermaid's slovenliness, the fact that the second girl is more than mistrusted of "taking things;" it not being fashionable yet to speak of defalcating with the spoons, though we shall doubtless soon reach even that point of white-washed sepulcherism. The enormities generally of what Punch has dubbed "servantgalism" disturb not the peace of poverty.

FEMALE COMPANY.—How often have we seen a company of men, who were disposed to be riotous, checked all at once into decency by the accidental entrance of an amiable woman; while her good sense and obliging deportment charmed them at least into a temporary conviction that there is nothing so beautiful as female excellence, nothing so delightful as female conversation. To form the manners of men, nothing contributes so much as the cast of the woman they converse with. Those who are most associated with women of virtue and understanding, will be always found the most amiable characters. Such society, beyond everything else, rubs off the protrusions that give to many an ungracious roughness; it produces a polish more perfect and more pleasant than that which is received from a general commerce with the world. This last is often specious, but commonly superficial; the other is the result of gentler feelings, and a more elegant humanity; the heart, itself, is moulded, and habits of undissembled courtesy are formed.

One of the gentler sex says, that the heaven of the strong-minded woman is, "where buttons grow in their proper places, and where men cease from bothering, and needles are

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

W. W. BROWN, A. B. HUTCHISON, } Editors.

Terms $2 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA.,

Wednesday Morning, Nov. 10, 1869.

ADVERTISING.—The BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN has a larger circulation than any other Republican paper published in the county. Our merchants and business men will please make a note of this.

Money---Pay Up!

We dislike to dun those of our subscribers who have not paid up their subscriptions, for money, but we must have what is ever due, within a brief time, even if we shall be compelled to use extra efforts to secure its collection.—To each of you, the sums are small; to us, the aggregate is important.—Those who receive the paper by the carrier, in town, may call at the office and settle, or on either of the Editors. Those out of town, may send by mail, at our risk, if they make the Postmaster a witness of the fact that the money is enclosed. Will not each of our patrons make it a point to attend to this at once? We are obliged for your patronage, grateful to those who have already paid, and are confident that those who have not paid, will now remit at once. As soon as you finish reading this number, send us the amount due, and if you can spare it, the sum due for the next year. You can thus insure the getting of value for your money by making it easy for us to furnish you a live paper.

Campaign Subscribers.

Our campaign subscribers, and those who subscribed for three months, are entitled to twelve numbers of the REPUBLICAN. It is our desire that all should continue to take the paper for the entire year; but we do not wish to force it upon any one, nor do we wish to strike any one off our list who desires to continue with us. If, therefore, our campaign subscribers wish to have their papers continued, they should notify us to that effect at their earliest convenience.

It is our earnest desire to increase our list to two thousand. In a county where we have 3,388 Republican votes we should have no difficulty in increasing our list of subscribers.

If the Republicans of Centre had all done their duty and turned out to the election on the 12th ult., we would have elected four or five of our candidates. This is manifest to every one. This fact should nerve the arm, and inspire hope in the breast of every Republican in the county. Friends, we have not made so good a fight, nor approached success so nearly, within the last nine years. This should teach us what can be done by united, earnest, indefatigable work. It should teach us that Centre county can be redeemed from the thralldom in which she has been placed by Democratic scoundralism, and the people from the heavy load of county and local taxes heaped upon them by a heartless and corrupt Ring.

To this end let us hope, and work, and strive. Let us begin the campaign for 1870, now. Next fall we have a Congressman, a Senator, an Assemblyman, &c., to elect, let us, without delay, organize for the work, that we may be prepared to meet the enemy and gain a glorious victory—to triumph over the aiders and abettors of treason, ignorance and crime.

Circulate the REPUBLICAN. Subscribe for it yourself, and pay for it in advance, and prevail upon your neighbor to do the same thing.

THE St. Louis Democrat, referring to the threat to establish another Republican paper there, says:

There is another reason why we should be particularly glad to see a new Radical paper started here.—Such a paper would be very apt to aspire to the position of "organ" of the party. Now we have no taste for organ-grinding, and very much prefer the position of an independent newspaper, advocating Radical principles because we believe in them, but perfectly free to assail men or measures whenever it seems to us right to do so. As matters now stand, we do not feel quite free at all times to criticise our party associates, because, if we do so, our remarks are instantly heralded over the State as "the confessions of the leading Radical organ." We have tried in vain to make people understand that we are not organ grinders at all; in spite of our best efforts, men persist in ascribing to us a sort of semi-official position in the Radical party, and in holding that party in some way responsible for our utterances.

The Democrat occupies the only ground whereon it can hope to have or deserves to have influence and thrive in the field of journalism.—The paper that labels itself "organ" and attempts to live up to the idea will fail. Some papers before now have boasted that they were "organs, but in the end they became nothing, which is the next thing to a party "organ."—Pittsburg Commercial

REPUBLICANS who want a good family,—and a reliable political-news paper, should subscribe for the Republican.

DANA, of the New York Sun, names Horace Greely for next governor of that State.

Our State Finances.

The following circular, authorized by the commissioners of the sinking fund, and sent to the holders of our maturing State debt furnishes, perhaps, the best answer to the carping abuse of those who have assailed the management of our financial affairs:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, HARRISBURG, Pa'. Nov. 1, 1869.

To the Holders of the Pennsylvania five per cent. State Loan, issued under the act of June 11, 1840, and maturing July 1, 1870:

GENTLEMEN:—The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund have authorized me to give notice to all holders of the five per cent. State Loan, due July 1, 1870, that all such bonds will be redeemed by this Department in full, with accrued interest to date of presentation.

You will, therefore, notify me (at this office) of the amount of bonds you hold and desire redeemed, and I will direct the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, of Philadelphia, to accept your transfers and pay the amount of your bonds, with interest to date of transfer.

These payments will be made on the first and third Saturdays of every month.

Yours, respectfully,
R. W. MACKEY,
State Treasurer.

P.S.—The interest on these bonds will cease July 1, 1870.

The gratification which this circular gives us is enhanced by a general view of the financial ability displayed by our own State officials, the steady diminution of our debt, and a comparison of our own State, financially, with the other States of the Union. In every view we have cause for congratulation, and every fair and candid man will admit that our affairs are ably managed for the public good.—In 1860 the debt of Pennsylvania was $37,849.125, the largest debt owed by any State in the Union. After nine years of Republican rule our debt is $33,286,964, and we have in the Treasury bonds applicable to the payment of our indebtedness, and no other purpose, amounting to $9,582,000, showing our debt to be (less assets held by the Commonwealth as above), $23.704.964. This statement shows assets against our debt of $9,582,000, and an actual reduction of $4,562,161. and therefore an improvement in our condition in nine years of $14,144,161. These figures, which are critically accurate, would seem to be enough, but they are peculiarly a source of pride when compared with others showing the condition of the debt of nearly every other State since 1860.—Now our debt, which led all the rest then is only fourth in amount. New York, Missouri and Virginia each owe a heavier sum, and while we have steadily reduced ours every other State except three, has been going deeper into debt, as the following table will show.

The following table gives the indebtedness of the State severally, in the years named below:

STATES.	1860.	1868.
Alabama	$5,048,000	$4 304.972
Arkansas	3,097,622	3,252 402
California	3,885,000	4.974 954

Massachusetts	7,175 978	25 355 747
Michigan	3,473 432	5,786 324
Minnesota	2 325,000	2 625,000
Missouri	23,923,000	38 146.928
N. Hampshire	82,145	4,169 818
N. Jersey	95,000	3,395 280
N. York	34,182,976	41,753.082
N. Carolina	9.129.905	11,433,000
Ohio	17,223.153	15,351,018
Oregon	58,372	218.574
Pennsylvania	37,849,125	33,286.946
Rhode Island	nil	3,626 500
S. Carolina	3,991.574	5,705,227
Tennessee	16,643,666	25.277,347
Texas	nil	2,320,360
Vermont	nil	1,567,500
Virginia	33,248,141	45,119.741
Wisconsin	180,000	2,282,191

It is not merely in the reduction of our obligations while all around us the States were augmenting their debt; nor in our enviable position when compared with our sister State; nor in the evidence which is here given of the wisdom and capacity of our financial servants, and the benefit of Republican rule, but it is in this fact:—This is the first time in the history of our debt that any portion of the indebtedness has been taken up without a new loan for that purpose. It shows that we have, after making the regular annual appropriations to the sinking fund, attacked the body of the debt from the surplus revenue; and so we may fairly hope for an extinction of our State debt to go on certainly and rapidly. A few more years friends, and the Democratic legacy of $41,000,000 will be, like the party which piled it up, a thing which has passed away, and left only an unpleasant recollection behind it. Let us hope that a continuance of the Republican party in power for another nine years will enable us to show the Keystone State free from debt, and almost without taxes.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

THE STATE ELECTIONS.—The Watchman, and other semi-rebel sheets, are jubilant over the result of the elections in New York, and New Jersey, on Tuesday the 2d, inst. Strange, however, that they have nothing to say of Massachusetts, and the other states, which cast their votes on the same day and elected in each and every one a clean Republican ticket.

New York, as usual, has been carried by fraud, black, wicked and damning fraud. Both N. Y. and N. J. voted for Seymour last fall. Every State that voted for Grant, and Colfax, last fall, has been carried this fall by the Republicans. What have the Democrats to crow over? They are exceedingly thankful for small favors.

Correspondence.

For the Republican.

EDS. REPUBLICAN:—Not from the Delaware Water Gap this time, nor of it. Since writing my former letter I have been too busy fulfilling my promise of visiting it a second time, and giving some further description of its scenery and some of the incidents connected with its history. I could, indeed, look out of my room window and enjoy a view of it from the South, and of the beautiful scenery of hills and valleys, woodlands and farms that cover the Southeastern slope of the Blue Mountains on both sides of the Delaware; but a description of this, unless from the pen of an Irving, would scarce interest those used to the scenery of Penn's, Bald Eagle and Nittany vallies. It has again and again called up to my mind a view of Pleasant Gap and vicinity, as seen through Linn & McCoy's Gap from Devil's Elbow Knob of the Alleghenies. Any of your readers who have gazed on the scenery there presented, will have some conception of that here presented. The only difference is that there the distance lent some "enchantment to the view," while the view of the Water Gap and its vicinity, was from a position not five miles off. But this is past for the present.

Having waited long enough to attend a convention of Good Templar's, in Portland on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 19th, and having heard an excellent address from G. W. C. T., Chase, of Penn'a., in the Presbyterian Church of Williamsburg, in the evening. The next day I bade good bye to the Gap and its associations, and stepped on board the commodious roomy cars of the Del. Lackawana & Western R. R. for this place of historical and educational note. At Mannuka Chunk, about six miles from Portland, the place of starting, I changed cars, taking the Be. Del. Railroad. These were by no means so handsome, commodious or well furnished as those I left. This railroad, (the Bel. Del.,) runs along the Delaware river from Phil'a. to Mannuka Chunk, some three or four miles above Belvidere, Warren county, N. J., or sixteen miles above Easton, Pa. The road is well ballasted and smooth.

Of the scenery along the Delaware, I need not attempt a description, as no words of mine can add to what is already known of its beauty and grandeur. It is well worth time and expense of the ride to any lover of Nature's beautiful scenery. The principal towns passed through, besides Belvidere, were Phillipsburg, Milford, Frenchtown, Lambertville and Trenton, on the N. J. side, and passed by on the Penn'a. side, Easton. Of the N. J. towns, I know little or nothing, save Phillipsburg. This is situate opposite Easton, and is fast growing in population and importance—destined to outnumber its neighbor, Easton, in inhabitants as much as it now out strips it in the energy and industry of its inhabitants in manufacturing interests, unless the plegmatic Germans of the latter can be aroused to think of something else than lager beer drinking and lager beer distilleries. 'Tis a pity that a place possessed of such fine facilities for manufactories should have so little care to improve them. On the East, runs the Delaware, on the South, separating South Easton from Easton proper, flows the Lehigh, and on the North, winding around the foot of College Hill, is Bushkill Creek, with as much water in it as our Spring Creek. Yet, leaving out South Easton with its iron manufactories, Easton has only a few gristmills, sawmills and tanneries, with a number of distilleries, to show as evidence of the use it makes of its water-power advantages. Its inhabitants number about ten thousand—a pretty good number for almost the oldest town in the State, save those of the Southeastern corner. The German element, as I have already intimated, is strong in it. This, doubtless, accounts for its present condition. There is a lack of go-ahead ativeness in them—a too much resting on the days of Rip Van Winkle. Judging, however, from changes noticed sometime ago to be taking place in the town—the pulling down of old shabby-looking tenements, and the erecting of elegant dwelling places—this must be giving way to a different element, or else their habits are changing, and so we may hope for different things.

The scenery about Easton is beautiful and varied. (Your readers will please understand me as not thus writing as viewing it from the cars, but as seen at other times and during the past summer.) Never have I witnessed scenery as pleasing to the eye, and as changeable at different times of the day as that from off College Hill. The fatigue of climbing its two hundred and twenty-six steps is forgotten in the sight upon which the eyes rest and feast. Easton, with the beautiful Delaware, lies below you. Beyond the river to your left, is Phillipsburg, and the hills back of it, covered with rich, fertile farms. In front of you, and on the opposite side of Easton, rising up from the Lehigh, are the beautiful farms and woody groves of Williams tp. To your right, your eye runs back over West ward, built on the bluffs and highland between the Lehigh and Bushkill, back over these onto well cultivated farm-lands. It is a richand beautiful scene, which, like a painting that presents new beauties every time you see it, viewed an hour after, displays some new trait to the eye—something new and before unnoticed. This it does not for one hour after, but for every hour. Upon College Hill, and from which it takes its name, is Lafayette College, founded in 1832 by Geo. Junkin, D. D., and now striving for rank among the first colleges of the land. It has two departments—classical and scientific. It has also special courses for those wishing to study Engineering, Mining and Metallurgy, or Chemistry. It numbers twenty-one Professors, Adjunct Professors and Tutors. The course of instruction is thorough, and any one wishing to take such a course, either classical or scientific, cannot find a better place for it than Lafayette College.

The town supports three daily papers, viz: The Express, neutral, the Free Press, Republican, and the Argus, Democratic.

I have digressed thus much from my journey, for which you will please pardon me because I have been writing of a town belonging to my native State, and with which I am some little acquainted.

At Trenton I again changed cars, taking, this time, those of the New Jersey, or, as we oftener call it, the Camden and Amboy road. One half hour brought me to the Princeton Junction, and ten minutes more of a ride in the "Dummy," landed me in Princton, from which place I hope to write you again, ere long.

Yours, Truly,
KENNETH.

For the Republican.

UNIONVILLE, Nov. 4th, 1869.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Upon looking over the New York Independent, a short time ago, I noticed that it spoke in very favorable terms of an "indefatigable" friend who was "pegging away" in opposition to "Free Masonry." The gentleman alluded to was Rev. Jonathan Blanchard. In connection with Mr. Blanchard, are several "indefatigables" of the same profession, who are trying to re-awaken and re-kindle the fires of anti Masonry, which have smouldered since 1834.—For thirty long years the spirit of anti-Masonry has almost dwelt with the shades of the past, and when we wander back sometimes, in imagination, to that period when we wonder, with a tinge of shadow and regret, why men of education, ability and instincts of a high order, could lend themselves to so shallow and fruitless an undertaking. But far more astonished am I, to find men in this enlightened day, ready and anxious to open a wound they may find very difficult to heal. Their convention was held at Plymouth, Mass.—Among many resolutions one was offered by Mr. Blanchard, which was adopted.

"Resolved," Among other things, that they "ought at once to take up the corner-stone of the Pilgrim's Monument, at Plymouth, and remove the plate on which were inscribed the names of the officers of the Grand Lodge of Masons, and that all imprints and inscriptions of the Order everywhere, should be erased by law from all public buildings and monuments, as subversive to the idea of popular government."

Do not these Divines know, or have they ever sought to know, that a very large percentage of our prominent ministers of the Gospel are Mason's? and when they have been clothed in "Light," become our best workers, take the greatest interest in unfolding and studying the mysteries of this ancient and honored Order?

Only in the secrets of the craft, is there a veil of modesty thrown upon truth and charity, to elevate their beauty in the eyes of God and man.—But for this veil they would not conceal from men the secrets which their actions reveal. They cull from all time, all nations, all systems, all philosophies, the immutable principles of universal morality, and blend them into an infallible dogma of fraternity, and with their trowels spread the cement of virtue about the foundations of society. The curtain which veils Free Masonry might be drawn without the fear of revealing anything but services rendered to humanity. The beauty, harmony faith in the Order, can never be diminished within the breasts of all true Masons, and the honor of the craft will ever shine as brilliantly as the morning star. Its teachings and doctrines are too deeply imbedded in the heart of the widow's son to ever be effaced.

In the convention spoken of, a gentleman by the name of Saml D. Green, took an active part. He claims to be a "seceding Mason," and edified his hearers by giving some reminiscences of his connection with the Order, and explained some of the obligations, &c. What must every good man think of his course? Suppose a man takes upon himself, a solemn obligation that will in no way interfere with his God, his family, or himself, and then reveals the secrets of that tie, to a convention of men, or even one man, who is not entitled to receive the same, I ask in all sincerity, should he not be shunned by all, as one unfit to be called friend, and unworthy the confidence of one of God's humblest children? Gentlemen should not be blind to the fact that they are contending with a powerful organization which has its representatives among all classes and conditions of men, and among all nations of the world.

SHALL WE?—Citizens of Bellefonte, shall we sit idle, with our arms folded, and suffer the State Normal school for this district to be established in Lock Haven? The Establishment of this school in Bellefonte, to say nothing of the literary character it would give us, would be worth thousands of dollars every year in a business point of view. Will our monied men be stir themselves?

ALL indications, point to an early solution of the Cuban question.

Father Hyacinthe

A Remarkable Letter from Him to Protestant Clergymen, to whom he Subscribes Himself "Brother."

At a conference of the Evangelical ministers and others, in New York, on the 4th instant, to hear Rev. Dr. Schaaf's report of his mission to Europe, to induce an attendance of as many distinguished Protestant clergymen as possible at the general meeting of the Evangelical Alliance which is to assemble in New York next fall, a letter from Father Hyacinthe was read regretting his inability to be present, which created a profound sensation. He said he was proud of being a Frenchman, and he hoped France would soon imitate the country which she had done so much to liberate during the Revolution. He said he continued faithful to the Catholic Church. If he had entered a protest against her usurpations, one could judge of his love by the bitterness of his lamentations. However, he was none the less sensible to the sympathies of the churches of other faiths in the stand he had taken. He did not think that churches separated from the Catholic communion are beyond the pale of the Holy Ghost. Whatever may divide us now we will be united in the space of time, and all live in hopes of the same eternity and love of the same God. we are all laboring in common for the great church of the future. To him, he said, the Lord had spoken. He said the Lord had put into his hands two withered branches. They were Rome and Israel.—He had so joined them that they were one tree. Men had laughed his ideas to scorn, but that he expected. After expressing himself further, he concluded by saying that he looked forward to one God, one faith, one baptism, and one Shepherd, signed himself "Brother Hyacinthe."

For thirty years I have done business in Bellefonte. I have for the whole of that time been one of the most extensive grain dealers in the place. I have always taken especial pains to accommodate my customers. Hereafter, or from the 13th inst., the business will be conducted in the firm name of

D. M. WAGNER AND SON.

I will increase the stock, will continue to buy grain, and to accomodate customers in every possible way. I invite all my old customers to continue with us and hope that the people of Centre, Clearfield and adjoining counties will find it to their advantage to deal with us.

D. M. WAGNER

JOB WORK.—Posters, Circulars, Bill Heads, Cards, Paper Books, Job Work of all kinds, neatly executed at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, at reasonable rates.

SAVE MONEY.—If you want posters, circulars, bill heads cards, paper books, first-class job work, plain or fancy, call at the REPUBLICAN office. All work done at Philadelphia prices.

FOR SALE.—Persons wishing to buy a good mare should call, without delay, upon H. H. Yarnell, near Houserville, this county. See advertisement.

CUMMINGS HOUSE.—This hotel now kept by W. J. Hesterman, is one of the very best in the town. His table is not surpassed by any other in the place His beds are soft and downy His boarders all look slick and fat, and are the best advertisement he could have.

RE BUILDING.—Our old and respected fellow citizen, Jas. D. Turner, has commenced the work of re-building his house, destroyed by fire a few weeks since. It is his intention to add a third story.—When finished, it will add greatly to the appearance of our town, and especially to Allegheny street.

TRUMP.—Every person, by this time, has learned who Jno. Powers is This we take for granted. For fear, however, there might be a few persons who do not know him, we will say that he is the man who exhibited the Napoleon Boots at the county fair, and drew the highest prize over all competitors. Store work exhibited at the fair made a poor show in comparison with the Napoleons. As a "bootist," Mr. Powers is a success; has few equals, and, in our opinion, no superior.

BELLEFONTE PLANING MILL.—This establishment, so necessary and so useful, has undergone a change of Firm — Edward and Evan Blanchard, Esq's, and Auston Brew, have sold out their interests to the remaining members of the firm—W. M. Holmes and W. H. Smith. The mill will, therefore, be carried on hereafter by Messrs. Holmes & Smith.

These gentlemen are well known in this community as being honest and strict business men, possessing great energy, as well as skill and experience in their business. We wish the new firm abundant success.

CHANGE OF POSTMASTERS.—Mr. Zachariah Miles has been appointed Postmaster at Milesbrug, vice David Glenn, resigned This appointment meets, we believe, with the approval of the entire Republican party; and why should it not? Mr. Miles has been a firm supporter of Republican principles all his life; besides, he is amply competent to discharge the duties of the office. If all other appointments made by the Department should be as judicious as that at Milesburg, the personal interests of the country will, we predict, be well cared for, which will conduce greatly to the dignity, strength and general welfare of the Nation.

FLOUR.—Wheat is still on the downward slide, and flour is selling lower than at any time since the breaking out of the slaveholder's Democratic rebellion; but our object in writing this article is, not so much for the purpose of stating the price of flour, as to tell our readers where they can always get the very best the market affords. W. L. Gordon manufactures, at his excellent mill, near Howard, a very superior article, both of wheat and buckwheat flour. The machinery in his mill is the very best, which fact accounts, in part, for the superior quality of his flour. Mr. Gordon is a very clever man; and lumbermen, and others should send in their orders.

BUILD UP THE TOWN.—It is with great pleasure we learn that a new enterprise is on the tapis. Mr. J. C. Porter, formerly of the Waterford Glass Works, N. J., thinks of starting a Hollow-ware Works, for the purpose of manufacturing fruit-jars, bottles, vials, tumblers and lamp chimnies. We hope he will meet with all the encouragement necessary for the completion of the enterprise Manufactories of different kinds are what we want. They will give employment to the sturdy sons of toil, who, in turn, will make business brisk for our grocery and mercantile men. This is the only way to build up a live, prosperous, permanent town. Will our capitalists assist Mr. Porter, and supply the necessary funds?

The material found near this place are of a superior quality, making a much lighter colored glass than is made in the East, or the West, which will give it the preference over the ordinary, or green glass now made at other places, and can be manufactured at a less cost. The demand is increasing every year for jars and bottles for preserving fruits, vegetables, meats, oysters and game. Glass is taking the place of tin, and other substances, for preserving purposes, where it can be had. It is the only article used for preserving, that acids do not corrode.

These works will give employment to a number of men and boys who are now idle about the town. All that is now wanted to put these works in operation is, the necessary capital. We are informed that, to start these works, it will not require much capital. Say about $15,000. To our Bellefonte capitalists, this small sum is but as a drop in the bucket. We have a dozen men in our town, any one of whom might start this enterprise, and not miss the small sum from his "safe," or bank account.

We hope soon to have the extreme pleasure of informing our readers that the capital has been raised, and that Mr. Porter is busily engaged in getting ready to commence the manufacture of the above named articles early in the spring of 1870. Capitalists of Bellefonte, wake up! Let us build up our town. Let us have more tariff; more manufactories, that we may thus give employment to more laborers

BARGAINS.—The place for bargains is at the store of Messrs. Gilliland & Co.

CHEAP.—Graham & Son have a splendid lot of boots and shoes which they are now selling very low. Give them a call.

CHANGE.—Mrs. Pattie Baer, formerly Miss Pattie Winters, of Milesburg, has removed her stock of millinery and fancy goods to Bellefonte, in the room in the Brockerhoff House, recently occupied by George Livingston as a book store. Mrs Baer has a large and well selected assortment of goods, and we think the people of this town and vicinity would do well to call and examine her stock.

Y. M. C. A.—At last we have a Young Mens Christian Association in Bellefonte. It was organized about four weeks ago, with Gen. Jas. A. Beaver, President; Prof. Hastings, Vice President, and J. G. Love, Esq., Secretary. The Association meets every Friday evening, in the new school building An invitation is cordially extended to all the young men of Bellefonte and vicinity. We hope it may result in much good.

GRAND OPENING.—Loeb May & Loeb will open an extensive stock of dry goods, clothing, furs, robes, groceries, &c., at their new building, on Allegheny street, on Saturday, the 13th inst. This firm deserves great credit for the energy they have displayed since the fire, and the indefatigable efforts they have put forth in order to accommodate their old customers, and the public generally. May they never again meet with loss, either by fire or water, is our sincere wish.

THE ONONDAGO GIANT.—Great excitement prevails in the vicinity of Onondago, N. Y., regarding a petrified giant, lately discovered in that neighborhood. Some give the dimensions of the monster as being twenty feet high, eight feet across the shoulders, and weighs four thousand pounds.

Whether the above is true or not, it matters but little; but it is a stubborn fact that Zimmerman Bro's & Co., Bush's Arcade, Bellefonte, Pa., have the best assortment of winter goods, of all kinds, at the lowest prices offered anywhere — Furs, dress goods, shawls, hoods, underclothing, Hall's boots and shoes in abundance. †

HOW TO MAKE A TOWN.—The true secret of the growth of any place is, the inducement and encouragement held out to strangers to settle among them. Encourage active and worthy men, whether they have any money or not. Their labor alone is worth money. Stimulate every legitimate enterprise by giving it all the friendly aid in your power. Cultivate a public spirit, and help your neighbor. If he is in danger of breaking down, help him. If he gets fairly down before you know his situation, set him on his feet again. His misfortune is to be pitied, not blamed, and his talents and labor are worth money to the community. Besides, it may some day be our turn to need a corresponding sympathy. Let us speak well of our neighbor. Talk well and encouragingly of our town, of its growth, its prospects, its advantages, and in short, everything likely to advance its welfare

A CERTAIN very estimable old gentleman of our acquaintance had the misfortune to be extremely deaf, from which circumstance there arose, occasionally, some exceedingly comical misunderstandings, one of which is too good to be lost

Our friend has a very pretty, and equally agreeable daughter, of some seventeen summers, whose beauty had completely captivated a young gentleman in the vicinity. Now, it happened one Saturday evening, during the period when said young gentleman was making his regular visits, that one of his father's hogs, heedless of bars and bolts, strayed away, and our young friend was sent, much against his will, to find it. Among other places, he called at the barn of his prospective father in-law, who, by the way, had the habit of interlarding his conversation with "yes, yes, yes," oft repeated. Meeting the old gentleman at the barn, our hero asked, in a loud voice:

"Did you see our hog down here?"

"Yes, yes; she's in the house; yes!"

GOOD ADVICE.—Every person, no matter what his calling, or station in life may be, needs good counsel—good advice. It has been well said that "Our best friends are those who tell us of our faults, and teach us how to correct them." One thing is certain, the man who will receive, and act upon the good advice of his friends, and who is industrious and energetic, is almost sure to succeed, no matter what branch of business he may engage in. The best of men, however, will have enemies; and we have sometimes thought that the better a man was, and the more brains he possessed, the more numerous were his enemies. Upon the same principle we suppose that the tree in the orchard which bears the best fruit, can always be pointed out by the number of sticks and stones lying under and around it. Every rational man has his enemies. They seem to be necessary to stimulate us to the performance of good and noble actions. Apropos to these reflections, we clip the following from an exchange:

Have you enemies? Go ahead and mind them not. If they block up your path, walk around them, and do your duty regardless of their spite. A man who has no enemies, is seldom good for anything. He is made of that kind of material, which is so easily worked that every one has a hand in it. A sterling character, one who thinks for himself, and speaks what he thinks, is always sure to have enemies. They are as necessary to him as fresh air; they keep him alive and active. A celebrated character, who was surrounded by enemies, used to remark: They are sparks which, if not fanned, will go out themselves — Have courage, and you will live down the scandal of those who are bitter against you. If you stop to dispute, you but do as they desire, and open the way for more abuse. Let the poor fellow talk, there will be a reaction if you perform your duty, and the hundreds who were once alienated from you, will flock to you, and acknowledge their error.

UNIONVILLE, Pa., Nov. 6, 1868.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—On Monday evening of this week, our village was in an excited state for a few hours. One of the boldest robberies was committed, at the expense of our Ticket Agent, Mr. Rumberger, that we have heard of for some time. Mr. R. had a package of one hundred and seventy six dollars ready to send to Altoona, which was in the safe, in the ticket-office. Immediately after the 4:27 p. m. train had passed, he went to the Warehouse; was not gone more than ten minutes when upon opening the door, a gentleman passed him. The loss was discovered in a moment, but the bird had flown. It has since been ascertained, from the description of the thief, that it can be no one but a "light-fingered" cuss who was here all day, a Mr Hugh Riddle, of Williamsport.

Quite an interesting affair occurred here, on Thursday, the 4th inst. Andrew Moore, of Clearfield county, was married to Mrs. Margaret Iddings, widow of the late Joseph. They were married by Friend's Cerremony, and their combined ages are one hundred and fifty two years. An extensive dinner was prepared, and the bride and groom, with invited guests, had a lively, and good old-fashioned time, TIBERI.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., Nov. 8, 1869.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In this letter I will endeavor to give those of your readers who have never explored this dreary region, a brief description of it.

It is unnecessary for me to say that stumps, brush, hills and marshes are the prevailing element This settlement is young in years, yet old in experience.—Some of the most atrocious deeds are here perpetrated, with as little fear for the law, and love for the country, as natives of Patigonia. The "soft" coal abounds in immense quantities. Mines are being, and have been opened, and operated successfully. Lumber is manufactured and exported in very large quantities. Wages here, for laboring men, are very good; but living is considerably higher here than in Bellefonte. Schools are conducted upon scientific principles, and in strict accordance with the improved methods of instruction.—The town is scattered over considerable territory, but is being rapidly built up, and will soon be as compact as any town should be for health This is a very healthy country. Physicians do not, as a general thing, amass wealth here. The most contageous disease is the "pistol-shot" This is a cold country, and if the excurtionists of your town wish a sleigh-ride ere you are provided with the "mantle of white," then send them this way. We are about 750 feet higher than Bellefonte, which accounts for our earlier snows. In addition to the many manufactories here at present, there is to be a steam Tannery erected in the Spring, which will furnish more of the working class with steady employment.

As the winter progresses, I will keep you fully posted on the march of events in this neighborhood. Yours, &c.

DUCO.

PINE GROVE, Pa., Nov. 8, 1869.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—We had the pleasure of attending the exhibition of the Pine Grove Academy, on Thursday evening the 28th ult. Excellent music was furnished for the occasion by the Pine Grove Brass Band, and Weaver's String Band. Prayer by Rev D Sell.

Master W. N Ross delivered the Salutatory, quite brief, and was very well spoken.

Essay—"No Cloud but has a Silver Lining," by Miss Ellen Shifler. A very creditable performance.

Our friend has a very pretty, and equally agreeable daughter, of some seventeen summers, whose beauty had completely captivated a young gentleman in the vicinity. Now, it happened one Saturday evening, during the period when said young gentleman was making his regular visits, that one of his father's hogs, heedless of bars and bolts, strayed away, and our young friend was sent, much against his will, to find it. Among other places, he called at the barn of his prospective father in-law, who, by the way, had the habit of interlarding his conversation with "yes, yes, yes," oft repeated. Meeting the old gentleman at the barn, our hero asked, in a loud voice:

"Did you see our hog down here?"

"Yes, yes; she's in the house; yes!"

Oration—"One by One," beautiful and touching in its simplicity, impressively spoken by Master H. M. Moser.

Essay—"Youthful Pleasure," well written, and pretty well read, by Miss. Mary E. Reiber Like the first essay, it was read a little too fast.

Comic Declamation—"Courting in the Country," tolerably rendered by Mr. G. W. Craig.

Essay—"Autumn Breezes," by Miss. Alice Ross. Though quite brief, it was well written, and well read. The only drawback being the performer's embarrassment becoming slightly risible.—Voice not so strong as some of the others, but the tones were sweetly musical.

Patriotic Poem—"Our Nation s Dead," recited by Mr. J. W. McMahan. This young gentleman's voice needs cultivation, but his rendering of the poem showed a thorough understanding of its language, and a heart to feel its import.—All present must have been deeply moved by this recital.

Essay—"The Fleeting Years," a very creditable performance, both as to manner and matter, by Miss. Clara Musser.

Comic Dialogue—"Pursuit of Game," by three young men A very funny little performance. Extremely well done. The audience was as much amused at the "sell" got off on the two "sports," as the countryman appeared to be.

Essay—"The Unseen Battle," an excellent essay, and very well read, by Miss. Sue Danley. A case or two of misplaced emphasis noted.

Declamation—"A Morning's Adventure," by Master W. W. Hess. The little fellow's manly appearance, combined with his correct gestures, rendered this performance irresistably laughable.

Essay—"Shadows Lifted," by Miss. Mary J. Archie Several fine thoughts were clothed in good language. Reading excellent.

Dialogue—"Acting Charade," by two young ladies, and two young gentlemen. A capital performance. Wood—Antidote—guessed by audience.

Essay—"Moonlight on the Wave," by Miss. Clara Kepler. A splendid essay, and well read. This young lady has a remarkably deep and melodious voice.

Oration—"Woman a Bundle of Fashions," by Mr. D. H. Waring, contained some keen hits. Well delivered. Voice on the lower keys, rich and clear. His powers of elocution should be developed.

Essay—"Can we Forget?" by Miss. Alice Musser. One of the best performances of the evening.

Comic Dialogue—"Handy Andy," by two young gentlemen. This selection from this inimitable work, kept the audiance convulsed with laughter for twenty minutes.

Essay—"Poetry of Flowers," by Miss. Annie Sell. Full of pretty thoughts.—Reading good.

Oration—"The Dignity of Man," by J. K. Shadman. A successful effort.—Well written. Delivery a little too tame.

Oration—"The Thoughts of Youth," by Mr. J. M Musser An excellent oration, and well delivered. Considerable oratorical power displayed.

Tableau—Representing "Morning and Evening."

Tableau—Representing the "Goddess of Liberty," and "Peace and Plenty," in one groupe; and another, "Justice," with "Mercy" kneeling under her scales.

Dialogue—"Acting Proverb," by the whole school The whole was well performed, but the parts of Pat and Biddy were unusually well done. Highly entertaining. Proverb—"When the cat's away the mice will play." Guessed by the audience.

Oration—"Valedictory," by Mr. L. N. Hutchison. This young gentleman is certainly a very fine speaker. The Valedictory was well written, and was listened to with profound attention

In conclusion, we must be allowed to say a word in praise of the promptitude with which the performances passed off. We were delighted with the music. The exhibition was a decided success. We understand the prospects for the next session of school are encouraging

A VISITOR.

CHILD BURNED.—A child, about one year of age, of a Mr. Weaver's, near Philipsburg, was badly burned, on Sunday, the 7th inst. The mother left it with an older child, and ran into a neighbors a few minutes. The child got to the stove, hauled the coals out until the fire caught its clothes, burning its head and body fearfully. The elder child screamed for its mother; but before she could extinguish the flames, the evil was done. This is another caution to parents having small children It is fearful the number of children burned and scalded nowadays. At last accounts, the child was still living.

Philipsburg can boast of an elegant Brass Band, which produces good music, we are informed.

Wesley's Dramatic Troupe was playing in Philipsburg during the past week to uncrowded houses.

HARNESS.—J. H. McClure, one of the oldest and best saddle and harness manufacturers in our prosperous young city, has associated with himself in business his son, Jas McClure. The business will hereafter be conducted under the firm name of McClure & Son.

At the county fair Messrs. McClure & Son had quite a display of saddles, harness, and other et ceteras, which surpassed anything at the fair, and, indeed, anything we have ever seen in this county. They drew the highest and first prize on every article exhibited.

They are both first class workmen, and Jas McClure has the reputation, altho' a young man, of being the best saddle maker in this country. Our farmers would do well to give McClure & Son a call before purchasing elsewhere.

LOOK HERE, READER, we do not wish to tell you that Consumption can be cured when the lungs are half consumed, nor that Dr. Wonderful, or any other fellow has discovered a remedy that will make men live forever, and leave death to play for want of work. No, you have heard enough of that, and we do not wonder that you have by this time, become disgusted with it. But when we tell you that Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy will positively cure the worst case of Catarrh, we only assert that which thousands can testify to. Try it and you will be convinced.

Sent by mail for sixty cents. Address R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by most Druggists everywhere.

BEAUTIES.—We met a gentleman, a few days ago, who spoke very highly of the "beauties of Centre county. "Why," said he, "I left Bellefonte on the evening train up Bald Eagle Valley an entire stranger, and the first evening I stayed with 'Julian,' a few miles up, and found her a very pleasant lady.—Next day I made the acquaintance of 'Martha' and 'Hannah,' and spent the evening with 'Matilda.' Why, sir, 'tis seldom, indeed, one picks up so many lady acquaintances in a day." We agree with him, of course; but 'twas rather too much for our dignity; we laughed.

FROM a circular dropped into our sanctum yesterday, we learned that our friend, Mr. C. R. Gearhart, has opened a General Insurance Office in our town. He represents that sound, reliable and popular institution, the York Fire Insurance company, and we predict for him a large share of patronage. The "York" stands second to none among our business men; beside which, he represents other solid companies, in the fire branch, as well as life and accident companies Those patronizing Mr Gearhart's Agency will obtain fair rates in sound companies. Call and see him.

NITTANY INSTITUTE.—This Institute, as will be seen by reference to the advertising columns of the REPUBLICAN, has suspended its sessions until next Spring. Prof S. M Otto is a highly educated man, and most excellent teacher, and we know that many of our readers will be sorry to learn that he has resolved to close the Institute during the Winter months.

THE most enterprising firm in the county is the shoe and boot manufacturing and dealing firm of Aley and Leage of Jacksonville. They keep on hand and manufacture all kinds of boots and shoes.

WEDNESDAY MORNING Nov. 10 '69.

Hen Manure.

We know of no better use to which hen manure can be applied than to corn. It is a question whether it is best to apply it in the hill, when the corn is planted, or to the corn, as a top dressing after it is up. We say, apply it to the hill. It has to be composted, of course, before it can be used to advantage; and the commodities used are various. Some persons use wood ashes, both leached and unleached; others coal ashes, lime, plaster, loam, &c.

Hen manure contracts a great deal of ammonia; consequntly lime and ashes would have a tendency to set this ammonia, free; but plaster acts as an absorbent, and may be used more safely. Probably a compost made of fine loam, or well pulverized muck, ashes and plaster in suitable proportions would be a good one.—There should be loam, or muck, and plaster enough to absorb all the ammonia or the manure; say in about the following proportions:

10 Bushels loam.
1 " plaster.
1 " ashes.
1 " hen manure.

Such a compost should be made early in the season, and shoveled over frequently, till all the ingredients were fully incorporated; and half a pint put into a hill of corn would be enough, as hen manure is one of the most powerful fertilizers known.

Coal ashes would answer quite as well as the loam- any good soil—so would muck carted out of a swamp in the fall, and left to the action of the frosts of winter to pulverize it. Perhaps five bushels, instead of ten, might do just as well; but the object should be to so diffuse the strength of the manure that it will not burn the tender roots of the corn with which it comes in contact.

Nor is it necessary to use either ashes or plaster in the compost, but as ashes is a good fertilizer, and plaster a good absorbent of the gasses (ammonia) of manures, it would be well when easily obtained, to use them.

Fifty dung hill fowls will produce enough domestic guano to manure five or six acres of corn; consequently this item of the farmer is worth saving.

MILK CANS.—When a can is to be washed, do not put hot water in it at first, but put in water not above milk warm, which will readily dissolve the milk if any is dried on to the tin, and it works off very easily, while if boiling hot water is applied at first, it has a tendency to cook the milk on the tin, in which condition water will not very readily dissolve it, but warm milk will. It is, therefore, very important to give strict heed to this matter, and see that the milk is entirely removed by washing before any boiling hot water is applied. Care must be taken to remove every vestage of the milk about the seams of the cans and covers, as here is where the trouble always begins. My attention is always directed to the seams first, if I suspect a can is not properly cleansed, especially the seams in the cover. The little tube in the centre of the cover is also a place to be especially looked after, in cleaning the can.

Very many people who consider themselves, and are considered by others, patterns of neatness, fail to keep their milk cans perfectly cleansed many times, no doubt, through ignorance of how to do it, and many times from a lack of appreciation of the extreme neatness or that scrupulous care necessary to keep everything used about milk immaculately clean.—Ohio Farmer.

SHYING HORSES.—L. A. &., in the Scientific American, says that a horseman should never "shy" himself when the horse shies, or show the least nervousness, or notice in the horse, and far less punish him for it, and adds:—Allow me, having had a great deal of experience in managing horses to add another bit of advice to nervous horsemen. Whenever they notice their horse directing his ears to any point whatever, or indicating the slightest disposition to become afraid let them instead of pulling the rein to bring the horse towards the object causing its nervousness, pull it on the other side. This will instantly divert the attention of the horse from the object which is exciting his suspicion and in ninety nine cases out of a hundred the horse will pay no attention to the object, from which he will fly away if forcibly driven to it by pulling the wrong rein.

HOW TO KEEP CIDER SWEET.—The following receipt, on account of a large yield of apples, will be of value to our farmers: When fermentation commences in one barrel, draw off the liquid into another one—strain through a flannel cloth. Put into the cider three-fourths of an ounce of oil of sassafras, and the same of oil of wintergreen, well shaken up in a pint of alcohol. But one difficulty is said to pertain to this preparation of cider. It is so palatable that people won't keep it long.

MEN often make unlucky investments, but hardly anything else is so certain to pay in the long run as judicious Tree-Planting.

REMEMBER "figs do not grow on thistles," with equal truth may be said from good seed only can good vegetables be obtained.

Bad Luck.

This general term for bad management should be abolished; there is no such thing as bad luck in the sense in which it is used. There are accidents which no common good care could prevent, but there are few ills attending crops, live stock, or the disposal of the same, which cannot be easily traced to bad management. For instance, a field of corn turns out so badly in quality and light in quantity that the owner says that he has "had shocking bad luck with it this year;" but on inquiry it will be found that he neglected his work, and ought to have planted a month earlier than he did; that his manure was raw, having been taken from a heap which had never been turned over, and other people's corn was up and looking well when his was put in the ground.—His lambs die without any apparent cause, many of the ewes having done the same previous to weaning time; but these sheep were shut in close quarter's most of the winter, eating dusty and hard hay without any roots, bran or grain to strengthen them and enable their stomachs to digest. His cows have been miscarrying, and those having gone their full time give little milk, so that he has had "bad luck" with them too; it will be found on investigation that these poor animals lived on mouldy cornstalks the first part of the winter, chopped up and wet, so that they could not pick out any which happend to be not quite bad as the rest; then, just as abortion commenced, some hay was given them which was full of weeds—all of it, timothy, clover and weeds, in seed; the clover quite black, and the stems of all crackling like brushwood when moved about. Bushels of seed were knocked out in haymaking, many more bushels scattered about in loading and unloading, while the rest sheds off and mixes with the few leaves left to rub off the stems, in being forked over from the mow to the mangers.—Country Gentleman.

From The American Agriculturist.

GRAPES.—Pruning is usually done this month. There are now only canes and buds. Each of these buds will next year be a green shoot, and may or may not bear fruit. Bearing this in mind, one must exercise judgement and leave enough buds to produce new shoots, to properly cover the trellis. This is the best instruction we can give those who follow no particu system in pruning or who have old vines that have been neglected and are beyond proper control. In cold climates it is better to leave an extra bud at pruning, and remove this in February or after the severity of the winter is over.

Grape Cuttings are made at the time of pruning. Cut the wood into lengths of two or three eyes, will be free from frost. If it will be needed for starting under glass, cut into convenient lengths and keep it in the cellar under sand or earth.

CUTTINGS of quinces, currants, and gooseberries, may still be planted if the ground is in good condition. Make them about six inches long, and plant with one bud at the surface. The quickest way is to open a trench and lay the cuttings about four inches apart, against one side of it; then fill in some earth and ram it down against the cuttings with the end of a board; finish filling the trench, and pack down firmly. It is well to mulch the bed, to keep the cuttiugs from being thrown out by frosts.

HORSES.—If possible, have the stable so arranged as to be more easily kept clean than neglected. Young horses ought to be stabled, and as carefully groomed as older ones.—The horses future is in a great measure decided his first winter. Nothing will compensate for neglect. Old horses, especially those which have been hard worked, may have the range of a piece of woodland or brush pasture until snow comes, and will, do well, if the grass and bushes have not been gnawed down too close by sheep and other animals. Horses do well, at least early in the season, on corn stalks and will often eat them cleaner than cows. If cut too short, they will give the horses sore mouths.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says, the best way to destroy the tent caterpillar—and he has been in the business about ten years and has slaughtered some bushels of them, is, first to try and get all the eggs from the trees in the fall, winter and spring then go about noon of a bright day, when you will find them nearly all in and about their nests. "I take my hand and take the nest and worms all clean from the tree, and destroy the worms. I do not find it a disagreeable job. I am satisfied it is good for the trees. I have tried the early morning process time and again but I know noon is the best time for me."

WHEN hogs are kept in pens and cannot hunt gren food, they should have clover and other succulent grasses given them occasionally. Soda, char-coal, stone-coal or clay should be given them frequently. These tend to correct and prevent disesses, and are very much relished by them. A little attention to this subject will prevent much disease among hogs.

ONE of the aims in farming should be to produce as far as possible, everything you consume, to buy nothing you can raise yourself.

THOROUGH drainage, deep plowing, a liberal use of Manure, and good cultivation, cannot fail to produce remunerative, bountiful harvests.

"GRANDFATHERS' STOVE."

Our grandfather's stove, what a funny old thing,
So deep, so wide and so tall;
Now the people would say, who are stylish and gay,
"It was only a hole in the wall."

It matters not what, it was pleasant to see
When night's mantle was flung over all;
Grandfather take down his good book and read
By the light from the hole in the wall.

As the sturdy young men rolled in the great logs,
They would laugh at each wintry squall,
Whilst grandma would sit on her old chair and knit
By the light from the whole in the wall.

The girls then wore home spun, and so did their beaux's,
For pride was a principle small;
And courting was done and hearts have been won
By the light from the hole in the wall.

The neighbors were friendly wherever they'd meet,
With a word of true kindness for all;
And joy was complete to hear voices so sweet
Ring round that old hole in the wall.

In those days we know, folks cared not for show,
Of improvements knew nothing at all;
But 'twas really no joke, when great clouds of smoke
Rushed out from the hole in the wall.

But those days are now o'er, we shall know them no more,
And all those old fashions have flown;
Whilst the solemn and gay are coming each day
To purchase the famous "OLD HOME."

Coming not only in couples, but in scores, as hundreds of good and wise men and women have done before, to look upon this magnificent stove, which is acknowledged to be the best cooking stove of the age. Remember the place,

SEWING MACHINES.

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE

OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.

In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.
